

The Business of Spending Money Before You Get It

I'VE BEEN following Arkansas legislatures since 1923 and this without doubt is the most fouled-up session in history.

The session ends Thursday, leaving only two working days from the time I write this — and the basic taxation and appropriation bills remain undone.

At first glance you might blame the legislators for inattention and laxness. Apparently they've fooled away most of the 60-day meeting without accomplishing what they were sent to Little Rock to do. But circumstances handed them a rough deal.

There is creeping into our state government the same misrepresentation and economic paralysis that has run up an astronomical debt for the federal outfit and resulted in confiscatory federal taxes. The government's disarray is in fact about the practice of delegating authority to bureaus and departments — and permitting the bureaus and departments to set their own budgets, and then letting the congress or legislature sweat it out with the problem how to raise the tax money that non-representative government has already anticipated.

This is not democracy — it is dictatorship. The threat of it has been in Washington ever since depression days — and now the threat has come to Arkansas, in days of plenty.

The statehouse school crowd knew a couple of years ago that they were spending surplus funds — not actual annual taxes. But instead of retrenching they increased their budget. And when it appeared they weren't likely to raise the necessary money through the normal legal channels of representative government they hatched up Amendment No. 41 in the general election last November. It was an audacious and dictatorial grab — and the people, thoroughly alarmed, slapped it down.

But the problem that went over into the 1951 General Assembly remained nearly insoluble — for the normal approach to the public-service and money problems of a democratic state had been ruined. Whatever comes out of the legislative session now — with only two days to go — is bound to be bad. But I don't blame the legislators in particular. The blame rests with the whole citizenry of Arkansas. We let things drift — as we usually do — until the stark crisis presented by Amendment No. 41 shook us out of our sleep.

Today our problem is to get back to the basic principles of representative government. And I would say the first step in that direction would be to double or triple the salaries and expense accounts of the representatives and senators we send to Little Rock.

Why isn't it good business to pay the legislators at least as much as the bureaucrats they are expected to keep under control?

If this seems an amazing commentary in an editorial dealing with public money and economy, all I have to say is that you yourself are being hypocritical. No established business or professional man or woman would be caught over-night in the legislature at the prevailing level of salaries and expenses.

Good government requires men of proven competence and experience. And you've got to pay 'em. Don't laugh at the 1951 General Assembly. The joke's on you.

Leader Says Farm, Food Prices to Drop

Washington, March 6 — (AP) — A national farm leader said today there is a good chance that farm and food prices will decline somewhat during the months ahead.

John H. Davis, executive secretary of the national council of farmer cooperatives, said no rise is likely if farm production continues at current high levels.

A recent agricultural department report showed that farm prices reached a record level in mid-February. However, some farm products — particularly hogs and grains — have declined since that time.

Davis said much of the increase in food prices since the start of the Korean war could be attributed to "scarce" buying and stock-piling by housewives, retailers and others fearing possible shortages.

In his speech prepared for a luncheon conference of agricultural writers, Davis said there is already evidence that heavier than normal buying is beginning to disappear. Stories of large quantities of meat in deep freeze and locker units, he said, had played a big role in sending livestock and meat prices to record levels.

Davis' view was given in connection with a farm-organization statement condemning suggestions that the government use subsidies to hold down food prices. Signing the statement were the American Farm Bureau, the National Council of Farm, Ranch and Dairy Men, the National Grange, the National Farmers' Union, the National Association of Farm Owners, and the National Association of Independent Producers.

Snow, Bitter Resistance Slows Allies

Tokyo, March 6 (AP) — Park-clad American marines attacking over new fallen snow drove slowly ahead today in central Korea. The Chinese Reds resisted bitterly.

The leathernecks webbed pushing toward the key communications hub of Hongchon, 15 miles north the marine elements were 11 miles from Hongchon.

The Chinese Reds are believed to have concentrated their largest frontline forces at Hongchon. General MacArthur said another big Red force — the Chinese Third Field Army — is moving toward the front from northeast Korea to support the Communist Fourth Field Army.

MacArthur's report was the first indication of a large shift by the Third Field Army. He said it was comprised of several army corps, possibly up to 80,000 men.

Despite losses of an estimated 22,250 troops since the United Nations resumed its limited offensive, Feb. 21 the Chinese and North Koreans are believed to number 300,000 below parallel 38 in South Korea.

Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, commander of Allied ground forces in Korea, told a news conference the Reds have plenty of men to launch a big counter-offensive.

But he expressed belief such an attack is not imminent. Ridgway added that his forces "at the moment" could stop a Red offensive.

The ex-paratrooper general spoke confidently on his Eighth Army's capabilities and praised the support he has received from General MacArthur.

Ridgway went to Korea from Washington to succeed Lt. Gen. Walton H. Walker, who was killed in a jeep accident north of Seoul in December. Ridgway commanded an airborne division in Europe in World War II.

On the battlefield, a six-inch snow fall slowed the determined Allied push Tuesday through the craggy mountains and rice-paddied valleys across the peninsula east of Seoul.

Units of the first marine division took hill 338 three miles northeast of Hongchon Tuesday after other elements pushed to points four miles north and northwest of the rubbled town Monday.

Agreement on Troops to Europe Sought

Washington, March 6 — (AP) — Some Republican senators sought today to reach agreement on an approach to the troops-for-Europe issue around which the party might rally.

But there was little sign of any such understanding as the senate foreign relations and armed services committee arranged another closed session to consider four different troops resolutions now awaiting action.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) expressed hope in advance that some votes would be taken. At the same time, he said he saw "some evidence of a desire to delay and confuse the issues" on the part of the Republicans.

The troops issue already has split the top Republican leadership wide open, and the issue has extended down through the ranks.

It is this breach that Senators Lodge (R-Mass.), H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), Saltonstall (R-Mass.) and others would like to mend before the committee takes final action and checks a resolution to the senate.

Chairman Taft of Ohio has said he will call a Republican policy meeting to consider a proposal if members can get together on one. Smith and Lodge, both members of the foreign relations committee, explained to newsmen they have this two-fold aim in mind:

1. Some kind of quick and decisive action to give a shot in the arm to the efforts of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower to build up a North Atlantic defense force in Western Europe.

The administration plan calls for the sending of four U. S. divisions to Europe to become a part of his force. Both Smith and Lodge favor this move.

2. Make it clear to the administration that in the future congress must be a full-fledged partner and collaborator in any plans to send troops abroad in peacetime, and not just be asked to approve a course the administration already has determined upon.

Mayor Brown to Address Bankers Meeting Tonight

The annual meeting of group four of the Arkansas Bankers Association will be held in Texarkana Tuesday starting at 3 p. m. Following an afternoon business session the group will have a social hour in the Texarkana club and dinner will follow in Grim Hotel.

Lyle Brown, attorney and mayor of Hope, will be the principal speaker at the dinner. He will discuss, "Are Bankers Human?"

Legislature Okays Plan to Redistrict

Little Rock, March 6 — (AP) — Similar plans for realigning Arkansas' congressional districts finally have been approved by the senate and house.

Both measures approved yesterday (SB442 and HB510) would put U. S. Reps. Boyd Tackett of Nashville and J. W. Trimble of Berryville in the same district and set Pulaski county aside as a district within itself.

But the senate bill hasn't been acted on in the house or the house bill considered in the senate.

Probers Find Colleagues Hotel 'Guests'

Washington, March 6 — (AP) — Investigating senators agreed today to keep secret the names of their colleagues who may have accepted free vacation stays at the swank Savony hotel in Miami Beach, Fla., where the cheapest room is $30 a day.

The name of one senator already had been mentioned, although not in that connection in a senate banking subcommittee's inquiry into charges of political influence in loans made by the reconstruction finance corporation.

Senator Bennett (R-Utah) a subcommittee member said yesterday the group had learned that Senator Murray (D-Mont) wrote a $1,000,000 RFC loan to another Miami Beach luxury hotel the Sorrento.

The subcommittee also received testimony that:

1. White House aid Donald Dawson has seen a non-paying guest at the Saxony an RFC borrower at least three occasions.

Hilton W. Robertson, RFC official who helped to get approval of the Saxony's $1,500,000 loan in 1949 received a rent-free two weeks' vacation at the hotel with his wife and daughter the following winter.

3. Senator Murray's son James Murray received $21,000 in attorney fees after the loans were made to the Saxony, Sorrento and The Maxwell Co. a firm which sold furniture to both hotels. Maxwell got RFC loans totaling $1,000,000. Robertson had a hand in approval of all three loans.

Senator Murray was not in Washington yesterday. Aides said he probably would have no comment until he had studied the testimony.

A second son Charles who acts as the senator's administrative assistant told a reporter he had made numerous inquiries at the RFC about loan applications but had never "urged or pressured anyone to make loans." He said he did not recall the letter about the Sorrento loan his father was said to have written.

Farm Bureau Wants Cotton Ceiling Lifted

Little Rock, March 6 — (AP) — The Arkansas Farm Bureau wants the state U. S. senators to help get price ceilings on raw cotton removed.

In telegrams to Senators J. William Fulbright and John McClellan yesterday, Joe C. Hardin, president of the farm organization, said the ceilings imposed by the federal government threatened to destroy the present cotton system. He suggested that the ceilings be imposed instead on finished cotton products.

The wire to McClellan also commended the senator for his efforts to get the order repealed. A ceiling price of 45.76 cents a pound was recently imposed on raw cotton by price director Michael V. DiSalvo.

Captain Brown Seems to Be a Very Unusual Fisherman — He Never Stretches the Truth

By ED CREAUGH (For Hal Boyle)

Solomons, Island Md., March 6 — (AP) — "Now, of course," said Capt. Mortimer Bowen, "we have the best fishing there is, right there in Chesapeake bay and the Patuxent river."

"One thing we don't have, though, is outside catfish. Where you get them in the Mississippi river, pull up a chair, and I'll tell you a story about those Mississippi catfish."

Capt. Bowen is a well upholstered, weather-roughened man with a pair of knowing eyes and a grin as friendly as a bay's.

He was a salt water fishing guide when I was in rompers. Now he takes it a little easier, tending his inn on the shore of the Patuxent, sipping ginger ale much of the time, telling stories.

We listened while the juke-box played and the almost spring sunshine cut capers on the window panes.

"These two fellows," Capt. Bowen said, "wanted to catch the biggest of all catfish, so of course they couldn't use ordinary tackle."

"For a hook they used a grapefruit. You know what a grapefruit is? An anchor, like, with claws. Heavy."

"For a line they used quarter-inch cable and for a float they used a 50-gallon gasoline drum."

"Bait? That was easy. They used a quarter of beef."

"Then they tied the line to the top of a tall pine tree and sat down to wait for their cat."

Another kind of cat, the four-legged kind, came through the door — a fluffy black female with white paws. She made a beeline for Capt. Bowen, who picked her up and stroked her. He has a weakness for small animals and children.

the mouth of the river — 14 or 15 miles I should judge — before they landed that cat from. It weighed 175 pounds.

"There was a long, respectful silence."

Someone said: "What I like about Capt. Bowen, he's not like most fishermen. He never stretches the truth."

"Never," agreed Capt. Bowen. "I ever tell you about the cabin cruiser that was caught in an eddy hereabouts? You know what an eddy is? Well, it's a current that's going one way while the main current is going another way. You get a kind of whirlpool."

"This cruiser got spinning so fast — so fast — that by the time it reached clear water, the alarm clock wound."

Capt. Bowen's blond little grandson appeared, wanting a nickel to play the juke-box. He got it, of course.

"Just don't play 'The Thing'." That's all I ask," Capt. Bowen said. The boy did play "The Thing," though, which was a pity because it drowned out the Capt. Bowen story about the man who grew the prize peach.

I did hear the ending, though. Seems this man got enough fuzz from that one peach to stuff 11 pillows. And if Capt. Bowen says it was 11, it wasn't 12 or 10. Capt. Bowen is a very unusual fisherman. He never stretches the truth.

Jet Plane Still at Hope Airport

The F-80 jet plane which was forced to land at Hope Municipal Airport is still in the local hangar awaiting repairs. A guard from Barksdale Field at Shreveport has been on duty since Sunday night.

The pilot, Lt. James S. White of Chicago was flown to San Bernardino, Calif. yesterday and will return his outfit as Las Vegas, N.M. today. A crew from Shreveport is expected today to put the plane in flying condition.

Senate Approved Sales Tax Bill Runs Into Trouble in the House

House Okays Probe of State Education Dept.

Little Rock, March 6 — (AP) — The state education department and Governor McMath yesterday were slapped on the wrists by the Arkansas house.

House members approved, 78 to 5, a bill authorizing an 18-member legislative committee to investigate the operation of Arkansas education system.

It was sponsored by Rep. L. H. Autry of Mississippi county, who said the measure was needed to clear up a lot of "confusion."

"If the people of this state were ever in the mood to have their schools investigated, they are now," Autry declared.

Governor McMath's veto of a bill allowing commercial fishermen to get refunds of state taxes they pay on gasoline was overridden by the house.

Earlier, McMath said in his veto message that he feared the bill because he feared it might breed misuse of agricultural gasoline.

Rep. Tom Allen of Monroe county, sponsor of the measure, replied that all the bill does is give the small commercial fisherman the same right that farmers now have.

Other appropriation bills approved included ones for the health department, revenue department and the education department to equalize transportation aid to the school districts.

A civil defense program, which has been advocated by Governor McMath, also won house approval, 58 to 7. Speaker James R. Campbell paved the way for passage, explaining that the state stood at a operating funds if the law was enacted.

The bill, which goes to the senate, designs a skeleton organization to be prepared for action in case of emergencies.

Thirty additional sales tax auditors and four supervisors would be added to the revenue department's staff under a bill by Rep. Dick Wright of Clark county. Wright won approval after telling the house it was the only way to tighten sales tax collections.

The house defeated proposals for a soft drink tax on drinks costing more than a nickel, to consolidate all institutions of higher learning under a single board of directors and to expunge the vote by which the Hot Springs "breakage" bill was passed. The latter bill would divide breakage-the odd cents left over in computing winning city of Hot Springs.

Rough Spots Are Being Ironed Out of Junior Play

Practice for the Hope High School Junior Class play, "We Shook the Family Tree," has swung into the final week with members preparing for semi-dress rehearsal Wednesday night and dress rehearsal Thursday night.

This week will be devoted to smoothing out the rough spots of the play. So far practice has progressed smoothly except for one mishap when a member dropped into in order to attend the All-State Band at Arkadelphia.

The play promises to be a hilarious comedy which every one from the youngest to the oldest will enjoy. He sure to attend Friday night, March 8th, at 8 p. m. in the high school auditorium. Members of the play and of the committees have tickets on sale this week. Student tickets are 25c and adults 50c.

Split Over Policy Toward Labor Unions

March 6 (AP)—Democratic and Republican senators today split over the effect of a labor union's withdrawal from the mobilization setup and about it.

Senate labor subcommittee chairman, Senator Humphrey, said the fate of the mobilization program hangs in the balance.

Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), a member of the group, told a reporter that a mountain is being put out of a molehill of disagreement over manpower controls.

Unaffiliated labor leaders who are trying to divide the issue, he said, are the cause of the trouble.

Sumner, chairman of the wage stabilization board and Arthur Flemming, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, are among the labor leaders who are trying to divide the issue.

Sen. Humphrey said he is not sure if the labor leaders are trying to divide the issue or if they are just trying to get out of the mobilization program.

Deputies suggested that the foreign ministers talk about a peace treaty for Germany and methods of relieving tension in Europe. But they approached the subjects by different roads.

to tell you I represent the people of Arkansas and God knows the poor people have damn little representation here at this house". Speaking in favor of his motion to give the bill a second reading, Rep. R. Allen Lynch of Polk county, a strong supporter of school legislation, said that "you had better stop and take stock of the conditions that exist at this minute in the public schools of Arkansas."

When the sales tax comes up for a vote and you want to let the schools close, that is all right."

"But you are not taking a slap at any of us or the department of education or the teachers or the governor, you are slapping the most precious thing in Arkansas, children who have no one to defend them except you men here in this legislature."

The bill raises the two per cent sales tax to three per cent and earmarks an estimated $11,000,000 a year for educational purposes.

School forces have said repeatedly that it would solve the school's fiscal problem for years to come.

Earlier today the house had no chance to vote on a bill (HB408) raising the pay of women in industry.

It would have lifted the minimum pay scale from $1.25 a day to $3.20 for women with six months experience.

Rep. O. C. Carter of Franklin county tied the bill in opposition to procedure and several legislators said they did not think it could be voted on this session.

Little Rock, March 6 (AP)—Arkansas public schools financial problems and a sales tax boost to solve them took up most of the senate's time yesterday.

After a long wrangle, the senate in order:

1. Rejected a bill to increase the state sales tax from two to three cents on the dollar until June 30, 1952.

2. Defeated for the third time an emergency clause on a sales tax proposal (SB400), previously approved.

3. Approved a one-cent sales tax boost for four months—in effect supplying (SB400) with an emergency clause. The house has approved a similar measure.

An appropriation of $6,500,000 to build the proposed state medical center has approved. Sen. James P. Baker, sponsor of the measure, said that while state money is not available now for the project, the bill would provide mechanics for spending the money should it become available during the 1952-53 biennium.

A $5-a-month raise for employees of state elected jobs also was approved.

The senate also voiced its disapproval of Governor McMath's spending of his $200,000-a-year emergency fund. It approved an amendment limiting the fund to $20,000.

The amendment was proposed by Sen. Ellis Fagan of Little Rock, who said McMath has spent the fund for creation of a safety council and on other items "which in my estimation do not constitute an emergency."

Welfare department officials drew fire from Sen. James D. Johnson of Crossett, who strongly criticized a statement mailed with last month's check.

Johnson read to the senate the statement which notified clients that checks would be cut in April, May and June and might be cut in July unless the legislature comes through with some money.

It stated that department officials and Governor McMath had done all that they could to get the appropriation requested by the department. The notice was not signed.

Johnson said he could not recall the governor asking for any new revenue for the welfare department, and pointed out that money to pay welfare clients had been provided by the legislature.

"We resent welfare officials whose salaries are appropriated by this legislature sending word out to their clients that the governor is trying to help them and the legislature isn't," Johnson said.

TO ALL AUTO OWNERS

Your Legislature has recently passed a 1951 Financial Responsibility law. This is now Act No. 160 of 1951—being House Bill No. 200 by Harvey of Jackson County. The Bill has been signed by your Governor and will become a law June 6th, 1951.

Briefly this law is this: If you own or drive an automobile, you must show that you are financially responsible for any damage your car or truck may cause, whether you cause Bodily Injury or damage any property. Now—you can file evidence with the State Revenue Commissioner that you are financially responsible—OR in lieu of that, have a "Liability" Insurance policy from a responsible Insurance Company who will act in your place in case you have an accident.

We, nor any agent nor Insurance Company had any hand in making this new law but your representatives thought it for the best interest of the public to pass such a law.

We will be glad to serve you.

"How I Relieve Distress of Monthly Female Complaints" and nervous feelings several days before... with Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—truly 'the woman's friend'

"Several days just before my period I feel so nervous, irritable, restless, easily upset at the slightest thing—due to female functional monthly disturbances. I asked my druggist for something to take, and he told me Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I get simply amazing relief from this distress. Pinkham's Compound also relieves monthly headache, backache and those miserable bearing-down pains—due to this cause. Taken regularly—it helps build up resistance against such distress. "What also impressed me about Lydia Pinkham's Compound is that it's made strictly from nature's roots and herbs (plus Vitamin B). There are no harmful drugs in it. This is really a great comfort. I wish you could read this way, would give you the same relief. I have tried a lot of medicine, but none has helped me. Lydia Pinkham's Compound has."

Times Change—U. S. Envoy to Spain Is Given Rousing Welcome by Gen. Franco

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
Our new ambassador to Spain, Stanton Griffis, reports that his reception in Madrid was heart warming and that he found Generalissimo Franco "a very charming gentleman."

Well, times do change. Until four months ago Franco had for some five years lived under a United Nations boycott which charged in effect that his government didn't represent the people.

The generalissimo was one of the bad lads of Europe, and on the strength of the U. N. resolution most countries maintained representatives of only secondary rank in Madrid. This resolution was revoked last November and more normal relations are being resumed.

So America again has on the job an ambassador who told El Caudillo that he brought a message of "great good will" from President Truman and the American people. Yes, times do change!

This about face in diplomatic relations may be a momentous event. It may presage an effort to make Spain a part of the defense system of Western Europe against communism. That country would be a tremendous asset, for it not only possesses a big army but is strategically situated at the gateway between the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, and lies just across from Africa.

Could El Caudillo be won over to such participation. That's a question hard to answer in advance, for he is a man of iron convictions. Senator Hunt (D-Wash.) said in the senate Friday he had been told on high authority that Franco didn't want to come into the pact. Senator Cain (R-Wash.) said, however, that he gathered from a talk with Franco that, while the Spanish leader lacks confidence in some of the European governments which are members (and which also distrust him), it might be added, he is anxious to ally himself with the U. S.

I think it's a good bet that he would be glad to join. The U. N. boycott was a tough blow to Spain and she would like to be back in the magic circle of friendship.

Certainly when I was in Madrid in '46, Franco made it clear to me that he was anxious for good relations with the United States. As ing gentleman." He accepted what I handed him without even a scowl, and gave me a courteous answer. Franco took the lid off for America's representative. I sat a week. There was much of old world pomp and splendor in the ambassador's reception, a notable feature being the warmth of the public greeting. There are few capitals which can put on as good a show as Madrid, Spain, clings with affection to a lot of old traditions.

The generalissimo himself lives after the fashion of a studious professor, although in the surroundings of a king, for his home is the old royal palace of El Pardo, just outside Madrid. I don't mean that he is a humble person, for he very definitely is not, but his personal wants apparently are simple. Outside of hunting and fishing expeditions he likes to stay at home.

Naturally Franco is heavily protected against intruders, and the palace yard is rarely free of his famous Moorish mounted bodyguards. Plainclothes secret service agents also move unobtrusively about the village.

I arrived a bit ahead of time for my interview and strolled about the ancient hamlet. Being an old cowboy I remarked to myself that it would be strange if I didn't encounter a sleuth before long. And sure enough, very shortly a smiling little man appeared and adroitly found out who I was and what I was up to.

Some may find it hard to reconcile such royal splendor with democracy. Still, many of the old world capitals cling to these symbols of times long gone. Franco swore to me that he was heading for absolute democratic rule by the people.

In any event of one thing I believe we can be sure: Franco wants to play along with the United States and other Western Allies.

GM Records $834 Million Dollars Profit

New York, March 6 (AP)—General Motors Corp. made a profit in 1950, of $834,044,039, the highest in history for any corporation, the annual report to stockholders discloses.

The giant manufacturing concern, which made 45 per cent of the cars and trucks produced in the United States and Canada in 1950, had record sales of $7,531,086,840.

It had payrolls of $1,808,218,043. Its 1950 taxes amounted to $1,119,000,000—or $2.39 for each dollar in dividends paid to stockholders and 63 cents for each dollar of payrolls.

Despite the records earnings, C. E. Wilson, president, and Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., board chairman, said 1950 net income amounted to 11.1 per cent of sales compared with 11.5 per cent in 1949. They attributed the decline primarily to higher taxes.

The 1950 sales were equivalent to $9.35 a share of common stock compared with $7.32 a share on $656,434,232 earnings in 1949, after payments of preferred stock dividends. That is on the basis of present shares. GM made a two-for-one stock split last Oct. 2 and has more than 50,000,000 shares outstanding.

The 1950 sales compared with $5,700,135,141 in 1949.

The question of prices and profits was pointedly mentioned in the report by GM which along with others in the industry raised car prices last weekend by the three and one-half per cent permitted by the office of price stabilization.

"In appraising the financial results of 1950, we are gratified that the company's performance is good or bad."

DOROTHY DIX

Adoption

Dear Miss Dix: My husband and I have been married ten years and the only address in our married life is that we have no children. We both love them dearly. We have it in mind to adopt a child, but friends tell us not to do so. They say if we do we will regret it very much. Will you please advise us on this subject?

MRS. E.
Answer: I have answered this question a thousand times. In this column, but I'll gladly answer it again just as long as there are a man and woman left to ask it who have a longing for little children in their arms and there are little children who have no arms to go to.

As I have said over and over again, I do not think that there is anything else that a human being can do that is so fine, so altruistic, and so far-reaching in its consequences for good as to take a little lonely, loveless, homeless, nameless child and give it a mother and a father's love and rearing, a good home in which to grow up and a place in society.

Risk is inevitable
Whether the stark brings you your babies or you get them out of an orphan asylum, they bring care and anxiety and a certain element of risk. That is inevitable. For nobody can absolutely foretell how a child will "turn out," as the phrase goes, and whether it will be an honor and a comfort to you or a source of sorrow and distress.

But that happens with one's own children just as often as it does with adopted ones. Not many of us could climb our family trees very far without finding some ancestor whom we hope and pray our little Johnny, or Janey wouldn't "take after." Given a good home, love and a decent upbringing, environment will go a long way toward settling and hereditarily, and it is a good bet that the adopted child will turn into the sort of man or woman that you wish your own son or daughter to be.

As to where to get a child, you have only to apply to some orphanage or child-finding society who will investigate you far more thoroughly as to your fitness to take the child than you can possibly investigate the child you are taking. The best proof that adopting children has brought happiness to many lonely childless homes of the places suits of 1950 operations," said the joint statement by Wilson and Sloan, "it is well to bear in mind that GM's 1950 profits were earned in a year of exceptionally high volume."

"In high volume years profits rise more sharply than sales. In years of poor business, on the other hand, profits fall more sharply than do sales. Profit fluctuates in this way because an important portion of costs is fixed and must be met whether business is good or bad."

The question of prices and profits was pointedly mentioned in the report by GM which along with others in the industry raised car prices last weekend by the three and one-half per cent permitted by the office of price stabilization.

"In appraising the financial results of 1950, we are gratified that the company's performance is good or bad."
